DEADLOCK DELAYS SOLONS

RECOVER BODY FROM LAKE; BELIEVE NOW LOST MEN DROWNED

Abandon Theory Of Kidnaping In Lake Erie Tragedy

TOLEDO, O., June 18.—Spurred by the finding of one body and articles of clothing of others of the party of eight prominent Toledoans, who disappeared Saturday while en route to an annual Elk's outing at Pelee Island in Lake Erie, rescue parties today intensified their search for the remaining victims.

The recovered body, identified as that of John Hipcock pilot of the speedboat from which the party vanished was found in the lake near West Sister Island by Coast Guard Cutter No. 173. Its discovery indicated almost beyond doubt that the Toledoans were victims of a lake disaster and dispelled a previous theory that the eight men, most of whom were wealthy and active in northwestern Ohio politics, were captured and held as hostages by lake pirates on an island.

Some mystery still surrounded the tragedy, however, since Coronel Frank G. Kneft, who examined Hipcock's body, declared that the man died of exposure.

Several articles of clothing were found in the lake yesterday by searchers. Among them was a shirt bearing the initials "H. W. N." a coat believed to have been worn by John Myers, one of the missing men, and a light blue tie. The shirt, which was tied to a boat cushion, was believed to have belonged to Herbert W. Nauts.

The seven men who were still unaccounted for are: Charles H. Nauts, Republican leader and internal revenue collector for the Toledo district; Herbert Nauts, his son; Franklin B. Jones, former electric board official; Henry Hainbuch, assistant Lucas County engineer; Frank Miller, former city water commissioner, and John Myers, wealthy business man.

Airplanes and all available boats and yachts continued the search today for the men still missing.

LINER AGROUND OFF NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 18.—The United States liner President Roosevelt was hard aground on Robbins Reef in upper New York Bay today. There was no danger to passengers or ship.

Details of the grounding were lacking but it is understood she was slowly feeling her way through the dense fog which shrouded the harbor when her keel struck the reef.

The liner cleared quarantine at 7:08 and went aground about 8 o'clock. She was to have been docked at that time.

Shipping men said the ship probably would be delayed until after 2 p. m. when the tide would be high enough to float her.

MAGISTRATES AND CONSTABLES HIT

DAYTON, O., June 18.—Two magistrates and two constables holding offices in Jefferson Twp. are under indictments charging them with extortion here today.

The four officials were indicted yesterday by the county grand jury which made its report to Judge Robert C. Patterson. They are Magistrates John C. Emley and C. Wade Risner, and Constables Robert Bowsher and Harold Wallace.

The charges were brought as the result of Judge Patterson's recent charge to the jury to probe illegal operations of squires throughout Montgomery County.

AUTOIST DOZES AND AUTO HITS CULVERT

When Miss Rachel Ankeney, Beaver Creek Twp., dozed while driving an auto on the Springfield Pike near Goes Tuesday afternoon the machine ran into a concrete culvert and was demolished. Miss Ankeney suffered only a small scalp cut. She was brought to Xenia by Robert Keough, salesman for the Central Ohio Paper Co., Dayton, who was passing, and taken to the office of Dr. Marshall Best, W. Main St., for treatment.

BISHOP CLIPPINGER SPEAKS AT MEETING OF UNITED BRETHREN

Church's Duty Is Defined By Bishop At Meeting

"There is no disposition to unite the church and state but there should be, and is, a fine spirit of co-operation between the two," declared Bishop A. R. Clippinger, Dayton, in an address at Tuesday's session of the four-day Christian education union convention of the Miami Conference, United Brethren Church, being held in Xenia this week.

Speaking on the subject, "The Church's Duty to Provide a Program of Christian Education," Bishop Clippinger asserted the church will spend more and more money to provide more and better equipment for Christian education.

"Of greatest need," he said, "is that all the church's teaching shall be saturated with Christian ideals. None but the church is qualified to teach religion."

The Tuesday evening session of the convention was scheduled to be held in the Shawnee Park pavilion but the rainstorm which broke over the city drove the assembly to shelter and the session was held instead at the First Presbyterian Church.

The choral contest, a feature of the program, was participated in by church choirs from Beavertown, East Dayton, Oakwood, Willey Memorial (Cincinnati), and Xenia. The judges for the contest were Prof. O. E. Gebhardt, Mrs. Ethel Clark Bierbaum and Mrs. R. D. Frankhouser, of Dayton.

First honors were awarded to the Oakwood choir, of which Mrs. Good was director; second honors to the East Dayton choir, Mr. Sherwood, director; third honors to Willey Memorial choir, Mrs. Emma Grall, director. Special mention was given the junior choir of the Xenia U. B. Church. It was the only junior choir entered in the contest.

Wednesday's sessions will be featured by election of officers and awarding of banners and ribbons and will include a tour to the O. S. and S. O. Home, Wilberforce and Clifton.

In the evening a banquet will be enjoyed on the lawn of the local U. B. Church.

An address by Hon. Camilo Osias, resident commissioner from the Philippine Islands, will feature the evening program at the First Presbyterian Church instead of Shawnee Park Convention of officials received definite word Tuesday that Mr. Osias will arrive in Xenia Wednesday from Washington, D. C. He is the first Protestant ever to represent the Philippines in congress, although he has no vote as a representative of the United States island possession.

A vesper concert by the United Brethren home club, United Brethren orchestra at Lebanon, O., will also be included on the evening program.

The convention will close Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

MARKET SETTLES TO LOWER LEVEL

NEW YORK, June 18.—The stock market settled down to a lower level of prices at the opening today. Volume in the first sales of the day was comparatively small.

POLICE WILL PRO BE REPORTED DROWNING OF THREE YOUTHS

CLEVELAND, O., June 18.—Police in an accident in Lake Erie off the mouth of Chagrin River Saturday, in which three youths were believed to have drowned, was started today following claims of William H. Brown, Pittsburgh, father of one of the reported victims that "something was queer."

The investigation was started by Safety Director Edwin D. Barry upon the request of Brown, who hinted that he believed the trio of youths may still be alive.

Miss Olive France, 23, the only survivor of the accident, was summoned for questioning, as were other friends of the supposed victims.

The three youths were reported

AMONG MISSING

Scores of boats and airplanes have searched Lake Erie in vain for the eight missing Toledo men whose empty speedboat has been found. Fear has been expressed that the men were kidnaped or murdered by liquor runners.

Charles Nauts, internal revenue collector, top, and Franklin B. Jones, former Lucas County election board official, below, are the most prominent of the eight.

ONE DEAD AND THREE IN JAIL AS AUTO BURNS

Wife Takes Poison When Husband Is In Accident

WASHINGTON, June 18.—As the aftermath of an automobile accident in which a married man and father of five children, Miss Mildred Sloper, of Antioch Chapel, near Vienna, Va., is dead today, three men are under arrest and the wife of the man is in a serious condition from a suicide attempt.

The girl was burned fatally while occupying a closed automobile which caught fire at a filling station at Merfield, Va.

Those under arrest are Fred Pettit, 38, father of five children, who took the girl out riding over the objection of her mother; Joseph A. Mills, Jr., 20, and John Harper, 19, both of West Falls Church, Va. They are charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, but no decision has been reached as to whether additional charges will be placed against them.

Mrs. Pettit, the wife, took poison when she learned of her husband's escape, and is said to be recovering at her home.

ARGENTINA DENIES REPORTED REVOLT

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The Bolivian legation "at the direction of the government" today denied press dispatches from Argentina quoting an Argentine consul at La Quiaca, Bolivia, to the effect that a revolutionary movement has developed in all the cities in that country and that communication with La Paz, the capital, has been cut.

POLICEMAN BEATEN

LONDON, June 18.—An Indian police sergeant was beaten into unconsciousness by independence rioters in Bombay today, it was stated in an Exchange telegraph dispatch from that city.

Broken tree branches that littered the streets of the city gave evidence Wednesday of a rain and wind storm of near-torrential intensity that visited Xenia and vicinity at 8 o'clock Tuesday night. The storm did not result in much damage and the hard downpour of rain came as a boon to farmers. The deluge in the opinion of the Greene County Farm Bureau, was particularly beneficial to wheat and corn crops that had suffered to a great extent from lack of moisture.

Dayton Power and Light Co. employees were busy throughout the evening making minor repairs due to the fact limbs of trees falling on wires generally disrupted light service among rural consumers and in the city.

The north end of Xenia was without lights for nearly an hour because three wires were down on Shawnee St. between King and Galloway Sts. The fire department was summoned at 8:25 o'clock to stand guard over the fallen wires until repairs could be made.

No reports of damage caused by the storm were received by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co.

ADJOURNMENT DATE POSTPONED BY BOUT OVER HARBORS BILL

Pension Bill Will Also Be Argued Says Watson

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The date for adjourning the first regular session of the Hoover congress was postponed indefinitely today due to a senate battle over the $136,000,000 rivers and harbors bill and a deadlock between house and senate on the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

The waterway row found senators from the upper lake states battling to limit the amount of water to be drawn from Lake Michigan for use in the Illinois waterway. The Illinois senators were fighting to prevent any limitation. Both sides threatened filibusters and administration leaders thus far have been unable to iron out a compromise.

The controversy over the District of Columbia appropriation bill assumed national importance only because the deadlock threatened to prolong the present session. Senate and house conferees on this measure have reached an impasse in attempting to fix the amount the federal government should contribute to the expenses of running the city government. The house fixed $9,000,000 while the senate voted $12,000,000.

The situation rather alarmed administration leaders since they had hoped to adjourn the present session by June 28. This would allow the house to go home while the senate would be immediately summoned into special session to consider the London naval treaty. Confronted with several more weeks of activity on the treaty, many senators were ready to hold out on the district appropriation for weeks to come since it would be of little or no inconvenience to the senate.

"I can't say now when congress will adjourn," said Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader. "With the tariff enacted into law, we had expected to adjourn congress within two weeks at the latest. The dispute over the rivers and harbors bill is serious. There is no compromise in sight. Congress can't go home until that bill is enacted."

Watson said that when the waterway controversy was settled, he expected considerable discussion in the senate on the World War pension act and the Parker motor bus bill.

"Nobody knows how the pension bill will be changed before it is enacted and it may be vetoed by President Hoover," Watson explained. "Some senators insist we remain in session until after the President has either approved or vetoed that bill. Then there will be a fight over the Parker bill."

HEAVY RAINFALL IS BOON FOR FARMERS; LIGHT SERVICE OUT

Storm Floods Streets And Helps Wheat And Corn Crops

Broken tree branches that littered the streets of the city gave evidence Wednesday of a rain and wind storm of near-torrential intensity that visited Xenia and vicinity at 8 o'clock Tuesday night. ROTARY TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY IN CHICAGO

Over a dish of spaghetti in Madame Galli's restaurant Paul Harris explained to a friend his new idea—the idea of Rotary.

Paul P. Harris

By FRANK J. CIPRIANI
Central Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, June 18.—Twenty-five years ago Rotary went into the world, a child, and now, full grown and with worldly dimensions, is coming back home to the town of its birth with all the fanfare and color of an organization truly international.

Rotary was merely an idea in the brain of Paul Harris, Chicago attorney, twenty-six or twenty-seven years ago, but the idea was rooted. It grew, flourished and expanded, until today Rotary International is established in every civilized land, and all the major cities of the globe. Now Rotary

BOBBY JONES PLAYS IN COURSE RECORD IN OPENING ROUND

Atlanta Favored To Win British Open Tournament

HOLYOKE, Eng., June 18.—Bobby Jones, favored from the start to win the British open golf championship, became a "sure thing" with the English bookies today following his sensational opening round which he did in 70, equaling the Royal Liverpool course record.

Figuring Jones as virtually a golf machine, in which the human factor for failure was almost negligible, the bookies refused to today's round to take any bets whatever against Jones. He "can't lose" so far as the bookies are concerned.

Showing true championship form, Bobby took an early lead in the competition by carding a 70, equaling the course record, for his first round of play.

Going to the turn in 36 over the difficult Royal Liverpool course, Bobby fairly flew home on the wings of the birdies he captured coming in, for a 34.

Favored from the start to win the British open, to keep company with the British amateur crown which he captured regently at St. Andrews, the course-burning Bobbie set a heart-breaking pace for others in the competition. With a total of 296 strokes calculated by the "dopesters" as amply sufficient to lift the championship this year, Jones opened the tournament with an average 280 pace.

VAN SCHOIK TRIAL REACHES JURY SOON

LONDON, O., June 18.—The case of Perry Van Schoik, one of the three officials of the West Jefferson Kennel Club who are on trial here on charges of operating a place where betting pools were permitted, was expected to go to the jury today.

Testimony in Van Schoik's trial was completed yesterday. Final arguments were to be completed today, after which the case will be given to the jury of five women and seven men.

The state rested its case on the testimony that contribution tickets on dog races were purchased at the track. Only character witnesses were presented by the defense.

The charges were the result of raids which were made on the track several weeks ago by county officers in charge of Prosecutor J. E. Strayer. The other two officials who were arrested with Van Schoik are Paul V. Miller and B. A. Sargent. Their cases will be tried later.

HUGE MAJORITY FOR SENATE BURIES ALL OTHER CANDIDATES

Victory Is Claimed By Wets; Democrats Nominate Wet

NEWARK, N. J., June 18.—A veritable tidal wave of anti-prohibition sentiment rolled through Jersey today, carrying on its foaming crest the perhaps fateful political figure of Dwight W. Morrow.

By a margin almost unbelievably large and upon the single issue of opposing prohibition, Ambassador Morrow has won the Republican senatorial nomination hands down.

He carried yesterday's primary by landslide proportions. In so doing, he defeated, decisively, a field of three other candidates—Congressman Franklin W. Fort, bone dry and backed desperately by the anti-saloon league; Ex-Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, a recent convert to the wet cause; and John A. Kelly, a little known candidate, who was the wettest of all.

With returns still coming in this morning it appeared that Morrow's victory would be in excess of 200,000 votes, which is unprecedented in Jersey primaries. Fort was running a very poor second, closely pursued by Frelinghuysen.

With the returns nine-tenths compiled at 10:30 o'clock this morning, Morrow's lead was steadily increasing.

Figures for 2920 of the state's 3,304 districts gave: Morrow 335,518. Fort 95,074. Frelinghuysen 41,233.

In November, Ambassador Morrow will be opposed by Alexander Simpson, a "wringing wet" Democrat, who was unopposed for his party nomination.

Thus the wet victory in New Jersey is complete. Often cited as "the wettest state in the union" Jersey confirmed the designation in yesterday's primary in stentorian tones. The Democrats of the state have always been wet, and now the Republicans have joined them.

Inevitably, the effect of Morrow's victory will be felt politically far beyond the confines of New Jersey.

During the hectic campaign that preceded yesterday's voting and much to the ambassador's embarrassment, his enthusiastic friends were nominating him for the presidency. Presumably such talk will now be abandoned. At any rate, whether he likes it or not, the monumental proportions of his victory automatically send Ambassador Morrow to the forefront of the anti-prohibition movement in the country. The dry leaders themselves concede as much. During the campaign they derisively dubbed him "the new Moses" of the wets.

There was a good deal of speculation today as to the probable effect of the Jersey verdict upon the Republican organizations in other populous Eastern states. In New York and Massachusetts the prohibition issue is acute in the party, with influential leaders counseling through going witness in the state platforms. Undoubtedly the wet movement in these organizations will be accelerated by the vote in New Jersey.

The issue in Jersey was clear-cut. In his campaign over the state, which included nearly every county, Ambassador Morrow talked of but two things—prohibition and the London naval treaty, which he helped to frame. On prohibition he took the position that the eighteenth amendment should be repealed, and in its stead an amendment enacted which would restore to the state the power to deal with the control of liquor.

He did not discuss details, but in numerous speeches he preached the doctrine of tolerance.

It was upon the prohibition issue that Congressman Fort entered the race. A close friend of President Hoover, a frequent spokesman for the White House on the floor of the house, Fort declared he was unwilling to see the issue go by default, and with the earnest backing of the Anti-Saloon League, the congressman put up an energetic campaign.

From scores of platforms and pulpits throughout the state, Fort attacked Morrow's stand on prohibition, while the other principal candidate, Frelinghuysen, unable to differ with the ambassador on that issue, pointedly demanded to know "whether Morrow is running for the presidency of the senate."

President Hoover's name was dragged in repeatedly necessitating his twice issuing public disavowals of favoritism in the race. The first occasion upon which Mr.

WORKED TOO LONG; FACING SENTENCE

PORTSMOUTH, O., June 18.—Charged with having worked a laborer ten hours a day, James G. Tattler, foreman of the John P. Pettijohn Company, Lynchburg, Va., today had been convicted of violating the state 8-hour law.

Hayler faces a fine not to exceed $500 and a six-month jail term, or possibly both.

Tariff Becomes Law At Midnight; Fear Higher Prices

WASHINGTON, June 18.—When customs houses at all American ports of entry opened this morning, collectors placed into operation the schedules and administrative features of the tariff act of 1930. The new rates, which were signed by President Hoover yesterday, became the law of the land at 12:01 a. m. today.

While public officials asserted that the new law would not appreciably increase the cost of living or bring about retaliatory action by foreign powers, many experts privately feared both higher commodity costs and injury to the country's foreign trade which already has fallen off $800,000,000 this year, as compared with the first five months of 1929.

The treasury instructed customs collectors to put the new law into effect with the minimum of interference to business and industry. Officials said that with the exception of a few minor items what the new rates would be and that therefore importers had plenty of time to get their goods into the country at the old rates.

Experts predicted that the new tariff would result in a decrease in the volume of customs collections. This will not be felt seriously during the present fiscal year, which ends June 30, but it was anticipated that in 1931 customs collections would fall far below the $602,000,000 estimated when the last budget was sent to congress.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A FINAL CHARGE—Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you.—2 Cor. 13:11.

LOOKING FOR A JOB

As schools close, many young folks are out hunting for work. They tramp around to stores and business offices and consult the newspaper ads. They have plenty of energy, and do not like the idea of failure and are very keen for money, so they do not quit until they are something.

It is something of an art to make a favorable impression on the people with whom they come in contact. Two things that count the most are the manifestation of a willingness to work, and the showing of a favorable record in the schools they have attended, or the jobs they have held.

A young person who shows anxiety for fear he or she will have to work too hard, or who is primarily anxious at first for good pay, makes an unfavorable impression. A good school record shows determination and fidelity. The boy or girl who manifests those qualities may seem nervous and frustrated in asking for a job, but anyone can tell there is good stuff in such ones.

ANOTHER THEORY

Dr. Einstein now steps forward with yet another theory. He thought it out, so he says, while he was sick in bed and consequently had nothing else to do. The paragraph in his explanation is relayed from England which is easiest digestible by those of us who have the common or garden variety of mind is this one:

"Space will have to be regarded as a primary, and matter derived from it as a secondary result. That is to say, space has now turned around, and it is eating up matter. Space is now having its revenge."

We recollect once hearing a lecturer on things philosophical say that the Hindu thinkers have gone further than the thinkers of Europe and America because they have the courage of their convictions. Whether this applies to Dr. Einstein, there is no way of knowing. The doctor seems to have plenty of both conviction and courage. But however they may be, the Vedantists long ago traveled far along the road he is now entering gingerly. The doctrine of the "outbreathing and in-breathing" by the neuter Brahma, resulting in the creations and absorptions of successive universes, emerges from dim antiquity.

REPAIRING THE FENCES

The congressmen are said to be anxious to get back home so as to make needed repairs on their political "fences." These fences are not of very lasting quality now. American democracy does not "stay patched." You may think you have the flock of voters all safely rounded up, and then all at once some gap will be found in these fences, and over the flock will go.

And as years go on, the flock becomes more and more unmanageable. Old style methods of repairing fences do not go. Formerly a man could nail down his rails with the fasteners known as party regularity. The voters were either Republicans or Democrats, and it seemed like going back on their religion or their country to knock a rail out of that fence and jump over.

But today that particular form of construction has lost its binding power. The flock will quickly kick it out of the way, if they feel it holds them back from some good feed in the next field.

The aspiring politician asks how he can build his fences so firmly that the voters will have no desire to jump them? Well, it is doubtful if these fences are ever as important in the future. A flock of sheep may be kept at home not so much by the height of the fences, as by the fact that the feed is so good at home that it has no desire to jump. A well fed animal is too contented to care for adventures.

The ambitious politician would not better think so much how he can keep his fences high and tight, as how he can produce such good conditions among the people through faithful service, and application of good business judgment, that the voters will cease looking longingly through his fence rails. Perhaps in time they may not need any fences at all.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

SOME SENSE HERE

College students must be getting wiser than they used to be. In a vote at Princeton 252 seniors actually said they would prefer distinction in scholarship as against 94 who said they would prefer the varsity "P," which means distinction in athletics. There is much hope for the country when young men coming out of college begin to be thoughtful and actually take some interest in education.

Other senior preferences in this university are interesting. Three hundred and forty-four voted against prohibition and 48 voted in favor of it. Forty-four indicated whiskey as their favorite beverage and 40 wanted beer. Milk won 32 votes.

STILL EXPERIMENTING

The world really ought to be getting beyond the experimental stage in that kind of government which we call democracy and which aims to provide the people of their representatives with the right to make laws even if the people don't aim to obey them. In Iceland this summer there will be celebrated the thousandth birthday of the first popular assembly. Other nations of the world will join with Iceland in the observance. While the rest of Europe struggled in the grip of kings and overlords a thousand years ago, the people of Iceland met together and made the beginnings of modern democracy. It is a day worth remembering. Perhaps that early gathering of folk who were sick of oppression and who believed they could govern themselves was about the most important thing that has happened to the human race in the past thousand years.

And yet we are NOT out of the experimental stage in government. Democracy, or representative government, is not yet working any too well. Watch the senate and see whether you can believe that it is.

WHERE MAN CAME FROM

Scientists are still differing about man's ancestry. They study the gorilla and the ape. One expert says the gorilla's thumb is useless. Another says the gorilla uses his thumb. Give them time and they may discover where we came from. Might we not learn more and faster if we gave more time to the study of man's mind and emotions? We all know men who sometimes act like the beasts from which they are supposed to have sprung. We all have instincts not unlike the instincts of other animals. Watch how man behaves under the stress of difficult circumstances. Watch him at play. Watch him with and without self-control. We may learn more about him than when we study the gorilla's thumb.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

What was the "line of demarcation?" In 1494, in accordance with the wishes of Pope Alexander VI, the King of Spain and the King of Portugal made a treaty which provided that a meridian 370 leagues west of the Cape Verde islands should be a "line of demarcation," and that all the heathen lands west of this line should belong to Spain and those to the east to Portugal. The back of this was to put a stop to the constant bickerings between Spain and Portugal for the newly discovered Americas.

Civil War Pensions

To how many people were Civil war pensions paid in 1929? There were 59,945 soldiers, 39 nurses, and 181,235 widows who received Civil war pensions during 1929. This number grows less each year, there being a drop of 15,000 soldiers receiving pensions from 1928, and 26,000 widows.

Gordon Bennett Prize

Who won the Gordon Bennett international balloon race in 1929? The race was won by the "Goodyear 8th," representing the United States and piloted by W. T. Van Orman with Alan Mac Cracken as aide. They started from St. Louis and landed at a spot three miles southwest of Troy, after covering a distance of 341 miles.

Uncle Tom's Cabin

When was the book "Uncle Tom's Cabin" written? Did it have any immediate political effect?

This book, written by Harriet Beecher Stowe, was published in 1852 during the election of that year. While the book doubtless had but little effect on the election of 1852, it was read by thousands of boys who were voters in 1856 and 1860. Millions of tongues were set in motion and millions of consciences were stirred by it.

Plastering

What causes the finishing coat of plaster to crack before it becomes hard? The bureau of standards says the checking of the finish coat of plaster may be due to several causes, among which may be the removal of moisture necessary for the setting of the gypsum in the finish coat; by the action of the brown coat; by drafts of excessive heat, which tend to evaporate the moisture from the finish coat; or by an excessive amount of lime which, upon drying out, contracts with the formation of checks.

(NOTE: The following pamphlets may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin and a large stamped, self-addressed envelope for each, to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C.: "Who's Who in Hollywood," "Swimming," "Seeing Washington," and Charles P. Stewart's treatise on "Our Government.")

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—Some of the New York hotel men are viewing with alarm the increasing tendency on the part of drug store owners to qualify as food barons. There isn't a thing in the world you can't buy, these days, in a metropolitan pill shop and the hotel men feel that the mixing of foods, drugs and poisons is developing into one of the greatest menaces to health. In some places the same hands handle strychnine and salads, camphor and cake, castor oil and coffee, quinine and consommé, beladonna and bread, paregoric and pudding, and the inn owners of the town are trying to have a law passed to have the pill panjandrums stick to their pasties.

AND STILL FURTHER

Speaking of extraneous merchandise, the chain cigar stores in Tammany Town are day by day augmenting their wares, and if they keep on it won't be long before the stogie shops will be handling, besides cigars and cigarettes, gents' neckwear, ice cream and glue. A shop at 42d St. and Broadway carries a pretentious display of books featuring the best sellers as "Droll Stories," "The Decameron" and Rabelais.

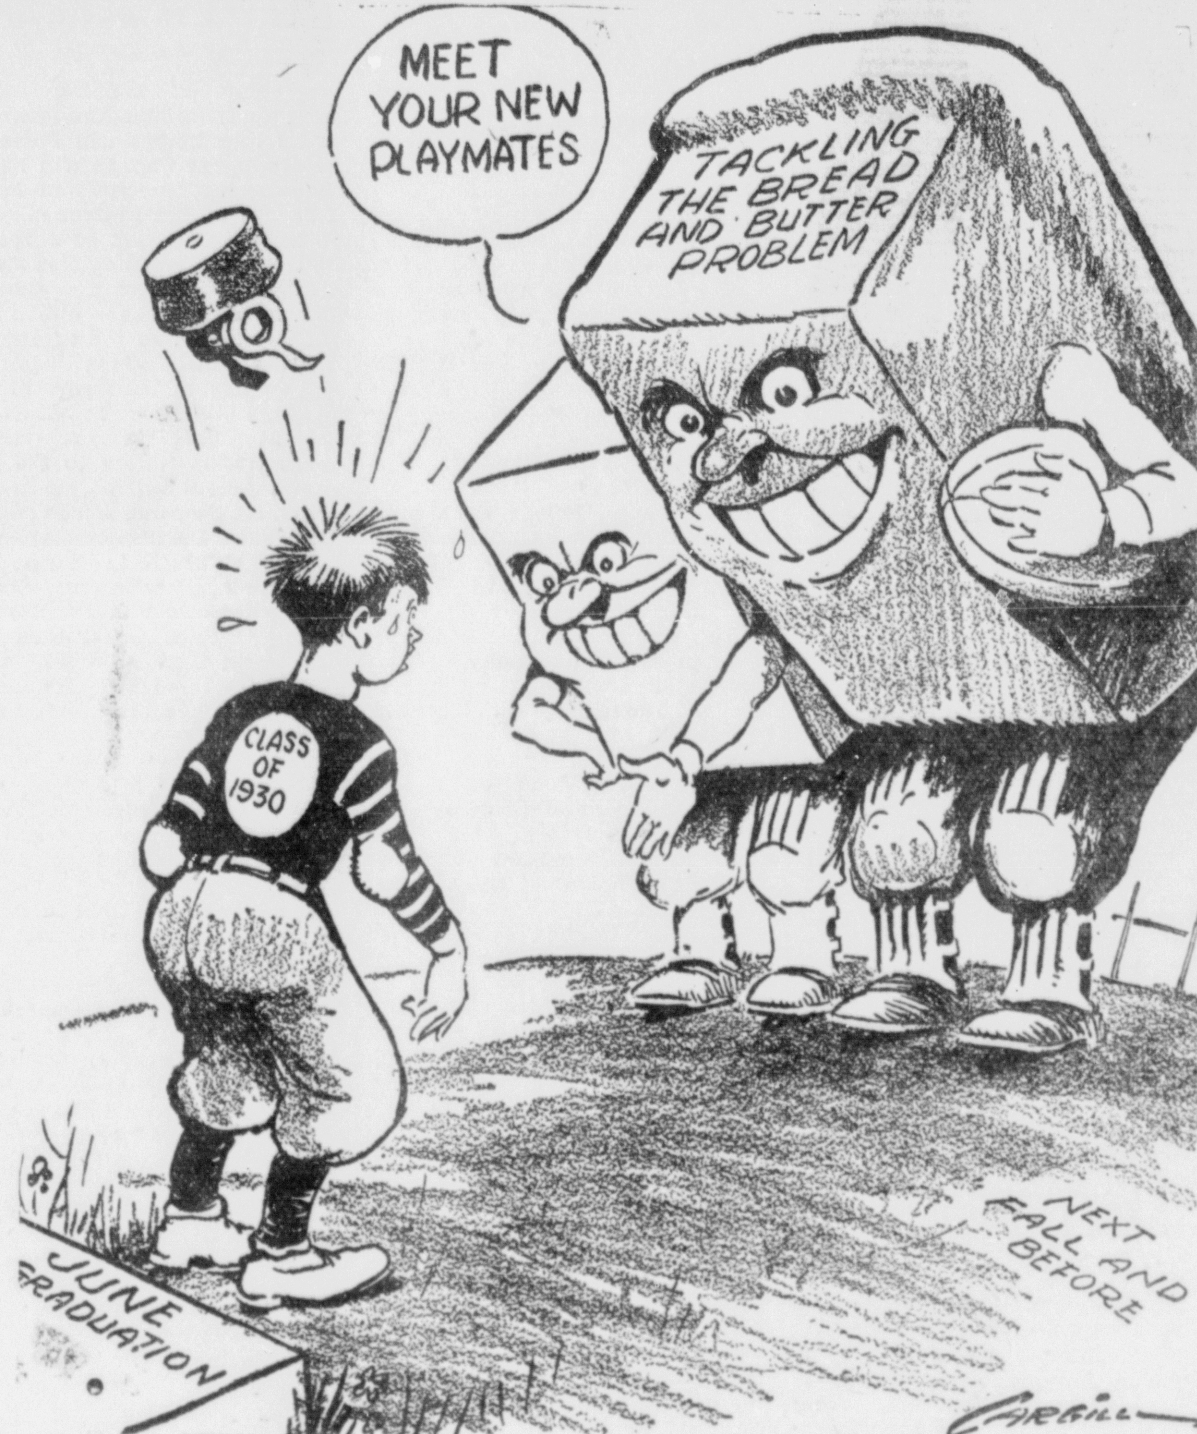

ADD SQUABBLES

Doc Paul Elmer More, of Princeton University, one of the authors of "Humanism in America," got up on his hind legs the other day at a college commencement and characterized the intelligentsia of New York as "the most tawdry and dingy ever found in history," and certain of The Brethren undertook the delicate task of telling The Doc just where he got off. Hank Canby, editor of The Saturday Review of Literature, diagnosed The Doc's condition as "peevish."

Burt Rascoe, critic, said: "More's words are to me but the droning of bees in a hollow basket." Chris Morley, erstwhile Hoboken popcorn and drama savant, said: "I only go into New York three times a week. I am writing a book and am not a New Yorker." And Oscar Garrison Villard, editor of The Nation, piped: "Dr. More is apparently a very bitter man."

Looks like The Intelligentsia had gone after a rhinoceros with a bunch of feather dusters.

NOMINATION OF IOWA CONGRESSMAN FOR SENATE ON THE REPUBLICAN TICKET IS SEEN AS VICTORY FOR BROOKHART

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Representative L. J. Dickinson's nomination for the senate on the Iowa G. O. P. ticket is described in Washington by friends of Iowa's present so-called Republican senator, Col. Smith W. Brookhart, as a triumph for the senator; some even say it makes him absolute party boss of the state—which I beg leave to have my doubts about, having been brought up there and fancying I understand its psychology somewhat.

Dickinson's primary rival was Gov. John Hammill and part of Hammill's program, if he had won, was to put the skids under Brookhart, so it's related. This being the case, it is reasonable to believe that Brookhart put in his best licks for Dickinson, and probably considers the representative's triumph a success for himself—but maybe rather because it meant a wailing for Hammill than, necessarily, because he is suited down to the ground with Dickinson.

My own notion would be that Dickinson is not nearly radical enough to satisfy the colonel.

Brookhart is sufficiently "ultra" to make even his fellow progressives in the senate gawk at him in amazement sometimes. Judging from his dozen years' record in the house of representatives, Dickinson can hardly be regarded as classifying with any group more advanced than the mild economic liberals—scarcely as much so as the out-and-out progressives, the way the designation has been interpreted politically in the last decade.

Of course it is true that the representatives' rules do keep their membership pretty well muzzled; possibly the Iowan has stronger views than he has had an opportunity to give vent to in the lower congressional chamber; possibly he will break out in an unexpectedly red rash in the senate, which it is a 100 to one shot he will be elected; possibly Brookhart already has discovered all this by personal investigation. However, it is highly improbable.

Almost needless to remark, the new solon will be many a city block nearer to progressive-ism than Senator Daniel F. Steck, the Democrat who, after next March, will be his predecessor. Steck, to be sure, would not be re-elected anyway—in rockbound Republican Iowa.

As is well known, he simply got in by an extraordinary accident, as the first Hawkeye Democrat to occupy a senate seat in more than 70 years—but his case does go to demonstrate why it will be 70 more before there is another one. Not that anything is the matter with Steck—except, in a state where the chances are 999 per cent against every Democratic nominee to begin with, it is difficult to get many Daniel Websters to accept nominations on the Democratic ticket. Hence when, once in 70 years, the lightning does happen to strike one, he seldom is the type of individual to set the Capitol afire and make the voters re-elect him by acclamation.

Dickinson's nomination not only is claimed as a victory for Senator Brookhart.

It also is claimed by Representative Wm. Wood, chairman of the G. O. P. congressional campaign committee, as a victory for the Republican regulars—on the ground that Dickinson was a defender of the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill, which Hammill is quoted as having denounced as perfectly awful for Iowa agriculture.

My personal impression was a little different from this—as to Dickinson. The idea I got, from what he said here in Washington, was that he swallowed the thing on account of its farm rate increases, in spite of his objection to the industrial boosts it provided. I know for a fact that he was an enthusiastic plugger for the "debtenture clause" and the regulars cut that out of it.

Nothing is surer than this, at all events—Any nomination that is a victory for Senator Brookhart is a whole of a long distance from being a victory for G. O. P. regularity—or any other kind of regularity.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

GOBELIN GETS MOSQUITO Peter's warning proved quite as useless as had Brown Beetle. Both had come too late, for the Little Mosquito could not help himself. Bravely he struggled in the water, but two long, grasping hands appeared beneath him and slowly dragged him beneath the ripples. For a moment, too horrified to speak, Peter watched the spot where the little Mosquito had disappeared. Then the ripples widened. Up rose the long, hands that had dragged poor Mosquito under, and Peter discovered they were not hands at all, but teeth, long and sharp. And these teeth belonged to the ugliest head he had ever seen. A great big head it was that now rose to the surface, a head with eyes that glittered like the eyes of an angry poll parrot. On the top of the ugly head was a pair of antennae that curved down over the funny face and from a distance looked much like horns.

"Isn't he a frightful fellow?" stammered Brown Beetle, and Peter, glancing down saw that his companion was actually shaking with fright. "Of course I am not trembling from fear to myself, but the very sight of that hobgoblin makes me fearful of what he will do to my friends. That's one fellow I run away from if I catch sight of him first. Once one of my young sisters dropped to the bottom of the pool, and met him face to face—in fact she fell in front of his nose. And my poor little sister was so alarmed that she sprang away from him, but alas, sprang right into the wide open mouth of a Frog."

"He is nobody one would wish to meet in the dark," agreed the boy who was not sorry he was on the shore instead of in the pool.

L. O. K.

The wife had been put on the budget plan. At the end of each month she and her husband would go over the accounts together. Every once in a while he would find an item, "L. O. K. $3" and a little further on, "L. O. K. 6." Finally he said: "My dear, what is this—L. O. K.?"

"Lord Only Knows," she replied.

The breakfast served for two, the luncheon for one, and the dinner menu is planned for four persons, the host and hostess and two guests.

Today's Recipes

Tomato Tulpis—Scoop centers out of four small-sized, firm tomatoes and fill with caviar. Rub one-quarter pound cream cheese to a paste, color half of it with green vegetable coloring and make alternate green and white leaves around top of each tomato by filling a teaspoon level with cheese and then pushing it gently off the spoon with your thumb. Serve on lettuce leaves with salad dressing.

Stuffed Flank Steak—Two pounds flank steak, one tablespoon flour, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon pepper, one-half cup sausage meat, one-half cup celery, cut fine; three cups stale bread soaked in cold water, one teaspoon sage, two tablespoons melted butter, one egg, beaten; one can vegetable soup. Rub surface of steak with flour and seasonings. Brown sausage meat and celery in pan, then add bread (squeezed dry), sage and egg. Mix well, then spread surface of steak with dressing. Roll steak together lengthwise, fastening with string or toothpicks. Rub surface to steak with melted butter. Sear in hot oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until all sides are brown. Then add one can vegetable soup with an equal amount of water, reduce temperature to moderate (325 degrees Fahrenheit) and bake for one and a half hours. Serve on a hot platter with sauce poured over and roast potatoes.

Suggestions

Have you considered how convenient macaroni and spaghetti are for hot weather cookery? They furnish the necessary starch for the meal, and are easily prepared. There is no paring, just open a box, and there you are.

HEARTY HAMBURGERS

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)

Make meat into cakes as for frying. Brown well. Have ready a rich biscuit dough rolled a little thinner than for the usual biscuits, and cut about the size of the meat cakes. Place one cake between two biscuits and bake.

Make a brown gravy in the pan used for browning the meat and serve with the hamburgers.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

"DEAR DOCTOR: You always write about fat folk who are reducing, but you never seem to think there are skinnies in the world like me, who would give anything just to gain a few pounds. I am 4 ft. 10 in. tall, weight 83 pounds, age 31. Help!"

You are not faithful, Miss D. If you were, you would know that I do write frequently on gaining. And even when I write for the fatties, if the advice is reversed, it is applicable to the skinnies; don't you realize that?

You could probably weigh 15 or 20 pounds more than you do, if you would increase your diet so that you could have a few calories left to be deposited as fat. I always advise those who want to reduce to cut out 1000 C. daily from their maintenance diet, if they want to lose 2 pounds a week. Those of you who want to gain should do the reverse—add 1000 C. daily. You mustn't try to do it all at once, but see 1 you cannot add 200 to 300 C. every day for three or four days, then 400 or 500 more for the next few days, until you gradually get up to 1000 C. more than you need. Instead of shrinking your stomach, you must stretch it so you will be able to hold more food without distress. Can be done!

Then you must learn to like more of the concentrated foods—nuts, cream, egg yolks, etc. Fat is the most fattening food of all, being twice as fattening, for the same weight, as protein (the meat element in food) or the carbohydrates (starches and sugars). But free fat easily upsets the stomach that seems to be as tender as the underweighters, so you should increase that very gradually. Cream, however, is an emulsified fat and is usually very easily handled. Nuts and egg yolks have a combined fat which is easily assimilated.

I suggest you take more of the foods having more of the appetite stimulating vitamin B—tomatoes, fresh cabbage and spinach, beans, and perhaps take some extra vitamin B in small amounts of yeast or yeast extracts, or in vitavite. Try to work up to taking at least one-half pint of thick, or one pint of thin cream a day. (4 ounces of thick cream, or 8 ounces of thin cream, 400 C.) And suppose you add one ounce of nut meats after each meal—(one-half ounce, 100 C.) that would be 600 C. a day. (Chew them well.) Then, before going to bed, you might take an egg-nog, made of milk and egg and some cream and sugar, and so you can add 400 or 500 more. And increase your bread and butter, and cereals.

Learn to count your calories and deliberately work up to the 1000 C. more than you need over your maintenance number. A maintenance diet depends largely upon your height and physical activities. From 15 to 20 calories per pound of normal body weight, is the rule. Your normal weight should be about 100, but as you are very short, your maintenance number is probably around 1700, unless your physical activities are great. That means you would have to work up to 2700 C. daily.

I would also advise you to take some cod liver oil, or some cod liver oil tablets. Sometimes, it is advisable for those who want to gain to go on a two or three day orange juice diet before beginning to increase the diet; it seems to help in gaining afterwards, although during those days you will lose some.

You should also rest more. The Peterizing pamphlet goes into the subject more extensively so I advise you to get it. Don't be discouraged, Miss D.

Follow my advice and write me again in three months, telling me how much you have gained!

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column in their turn. Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope plus the following small charge to help cover cost of printing and handling: for each article wanted two cents in coin; for each pamphlet ten cents in coin. The pamphlets are Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene of Women, Kidney and Bladder Disorders. Address: Dr. Peters, care of this paper. Write legibly and not over 200 words.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"MY DEAR MISS LEE: I am a girl 14 years old. I have a great weakness, and that is that I am bashful. I am taking lessons on a piano, and when someone comes to visit my mother or father I am asked to play. I am taught not to refuse, so I sit down to the piano and start to play. I keep terrible time and get nervous. But when I am alone and practicing I play very nicely."

"And some day, Miss Lee, even when my best girl friend comes over I can't seem to think of anything to talk about, and I know she thinks I am distant and don't want to talk. I would love to get over this. It really worries me."

"Miss Lee, should a girl of 14 be permitted to have a boy friend?"

"BROWN EYES"

Very great artists have the same trouble you do, dear, but they learn to think of their music and become absorbed in it, and thus nobody knows that they have stage fright. Playing before your mother's friends is the very best way of overcoming it. You will gradually get used to playing before people and forget the fact that anyone is listening and be able to play as well as if you were alone. So keep right on trying, even if you get discouraged.

And there are times when everyone finds it hard to talk even to the nearest and dearest. You can explain to your girl friend that you feel quiet, and let her do the talking by asking her about her activities and interests, while you listen.

How To Achieve Beauty

By GLAYS GLAD

The skin might truthfully be called a meter of bodily health, because of its intimate relations to the many activities of the body. Many irregularities in the functioning of the body are reflected clearly in the texture, quality and tone of the skin.

Dr. W. D. Sansum, in his recent book, has advanced the theory that failure to eat a sufficient amount of bulky foods, such as fruits and vegetables, is the primary cause of skin diseases.

The subject matter of this book is something I would recommend to every sufferer from such diseases. Dr. Sansum's book was called to the attention of Arthur Brisbane, one of the greatest of editorial writers, and his recommendation of it followed swiftly. Dr. Sansum explains that soft, concentrated foods form too large a part of the modern diet. Such foods are digested and absorbed so completely that there is not enough food residue formed to arouse the muscular action of the organs of elimination. And such elimination as occurs is too rapid. The consumption of the proper quantity of bulky foods slows down the rate of absorption of the healthful properties of food and results in more perfect elimination. As long as the body receives this kind of nutrition, the skin will become healthy, and remain so.

Dr. Sansum also declares that improper dieting is often the cause of excessive perspiration, and that, in many cases, excessive foot perspiration, and acid underarm perspiration, can be eliminated by the proper diet.

Though you may be, at present, a healthy, normal human being, it is important that you know proper diet menus, in order to retain your healthy condition.

So many problems that supposedly come under the heading of beauty problems are largely dietary. Keep away from the diet faddists. But learn all that you can of the remarkable advances that have been made in the study of the relation of diet to health and beauty.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Superfluous Hair
Verba, P. W. T. and Worried: A mixture of two teaspoonsful of peroxide and one-half teaspoonful of household ammonia will bleach superfluous hair light enough to render it unnoticeable. The growth can be removed permanently by expert use of the electric needle.

Buttermilk
Mrs. K. Wetmore: Buttermilk is not fattening, as the percentage of butterfat it contained as cream has been extracted.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin, for each, to cover cost of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's column.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Never before in the history of the major baseball leagues has any player been able to lead both the National and American leagues in batting, but this season Harry Heilmann, the slugging Cincinnati star, has a chance to accomplish the trick.

Heilmann has been pounding the ball in the vicinity of .400 all season and while it is too much to expect that he will continue to sit at such a terrific clip throughout the campaign, if he can remain around the .390 mark he could probably win the batting championship.

Heilmann, during his long stay at Detroit, led the American League batters four times, in 1921, 1923, 1925 and 1927, in fact, every other year during this period. In only one season was his season's average above .400. That was in 1923 when he had a mark of .403, but he has never hit below .300.

Three players and only three have ever had a chance to lead both leagues in batting. One was George Sisler, who led the American League with a mark of .407 in 1920 and .420 in 1922. He went to the National in 1923 and while he has hit well over .300 for Boston, he never came close to the league championship.

Zach Wheat was past his league-leading days when he went to the Athletics in 1927. Wheat led the National hitters in 1918.

Bubbles Hargrave, former Cincinnati Red, who led the National in 1926, is now smacking the ball pretty hard for the New York Yankees but cannot be regarded as a serious contender for the batting crown.

The recent trade that sent Goose Goslin, of Washington, to St. Louis in exchange for Henrie Manush and Crowder recalls to mind the close race Goslin and Manush had for the American League batting title in 1928.

Goslin was leading Manush by two percentage points when Washington visited St. Louis for a final series of the season that was crucial for the two contenders for the batting title, even if the series had nothing to do with the respective final standing of the Senators and Browns.

Goslin batted at a .466 gait in the four games and Manush hit above .500 despite the fact opposing pitchers were trying their best to fool them.

In order for the Goose to nose out Henrie by one point it was necessary for him to hit safely on his final trip to the plate in the last game or else walk or hit a sacrifice. With two strikes on him, Goslin came through with a double and a manush was the first to congratulate him inasmuch as he had previously led the league once and Goslin had never before topped the loop in hitting.

BELLBROOK

All persons found shooting fireworks within the village limits before or after the Fourth of July will be prosecuted.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Austin were Xenia visitors last Saturday.

William Prugh of near Centerville, was in town on business last Friday.

Bellbrook defeated Centerville Sunday in a close and exciting game by a score of 3 to 1. This makes three games won out of five played by the local boys. They will go to Spring Valley next Sunday and try conclusions with the team at that place.

While on a short visit to the National Soldiers' Home on last Thursday, we chanced to meet up with an old "Bellbrook" in the person of Charles Cunningham, who has been staying there a few weeks for medical treatment. Mr. Cunningham informed us that Morgan Fudge, an ex-resident of the village, and former editor of "The Bellbrook Moon" had been taken to the hospital following a stroke of paralysis only a few hours before. Together Mr. Cunningham and I visited the hospital and found Mr. Fudge much better than we expected to find him. His sight and speech were good, and he had fairly good use of his limbs. He is now eighty-eight years of age.

Ex-Councilman J. W. Anthony and lady friend were New Madison visitors one day last week.

Union Children's Day services by pupils of the M. E. and Presbyterian Sunday Schools were held in the auditorium of the new school house on Sunday night.

The open season for black bass started Monday, June 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Chenoweth, of New Madison, were Sunday visitors in the home of John W. Anthony and son Lawrence.

Harry Watson and family spent Sunday at the Soldiers' Home.

Jesse Miller and family moved to Bellbrook last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Allie Thompson were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Thorne.

James Davis, of Dayton was a visitor here a short time Sunday. George Decker spent a few hours with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Glosser.

Mr. and Mrs. James Davis, of Union City, O., spent Sunday with Mr. Davis' brother Rolla, who is seriously ill at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Maxwell on the Centerville and Spring Valley Pike.

Frank Bushon, 12 Jasper Ave., and J. B. Scribbins, Lexington Ave., both colored, are recuperating from injuries suffered when the auto in which they were riding toward Xenia left the Jasper Pike and upset after crashing into a pole Sunday afternoon a mile east of Xenia. Bushon sustained two fractured ribs and painful bruises about the face and head and Scribbins was cut on one hand by flying glass.

Choralambos Simopoulos, Greek minister to the United States, will be heard next Sunday afternoon over the Columbia chain in the Conclave of Nations program. The address starts at 2:30 p. m. EST on "Greece in World History."

LESSON TEN

Sit down on the edge of the pool, put your feet on the overflow rail, spread your knees apart with your hands locked overhead, palms outward, head between your arms, bend forward until you slide into the water.

After trying this several times, kneel on the edge of the pool with your hands locked overhead and plunge in. Then stand erect and bend over and fall in, keeping your legs together and your knees rigid.

When you can do this without overbalancing yourself, pay attention to rising from the drive.

At the instant your head enters the water, lift your hands toward the surface, at the same time curve your body upward so that you immediately rise to the surface.

CRITERIONS GET REVENGE BY BEATING GRAHAM PAINTS 8 TO 5

The rejuvenated Criterion softball team made amends for two previous defeats this season at the hands of the Graham Paints by inflicting an 8 to 5 defeat on Graham in a National League game Tuesday night at Cox Athletic Field.

Lloyd Downey, former Carroll-Blinder Co. pitcher, transferred his allegiance to Graham and was the victim of a five-run assault in the first inning. The Criterion added another run in the fourth and two in the fifth.

Meanwhile Herman Wells, Criterion pitcher, was in good form and held Graham to ten hits while his mates were reaching Downey for twelve.

Bunching of four hits with a base on balls produced the quintet of

WOMAN ACCUSED OF RECKLESS DRIVING

Mrs. Marjorie Fox, 4 Patton St., will have a hearing in Municipal Court at 9 a. m. Saturday on a charge of reckless driving as a result of a collision between an auto and a truck at Second and King Sts. at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday in which no one was injured.

The affidavit was filed after Mrs. Fox is alleged to have driven her auto out of King St. onto Second St. without stopping at the intersection, colliding with a truck owned by Clois Anderson, Bellbrook Ave., and driven by his son, Clarence.

The front end of Mrs. Fox's machine was damaged and the damage to the truck consisted of a smashed fender, wheel and running board.

RAIN WASHES OUT SOFTBALL FRACAS

Employees of The Gazette and the Middletown Journal, affiliated newspapers of the Chew Publishing Co., attempted to renew their athletic rivalry on the softball diamond Tuesday night at Middletown but the "kittenball" game was interrupted by a drenching rain at the close of the second inning with both teams still scoreless.

The players and officials of both newspapers afterward enjoyed dinner at Chautauqua, O., summer resort on the Big Miami River.

A return softball tilt between the two teams is planned for next Tuesday night in Xenia.

School Teacher Wins Pilot's License

Helen V. Cox, former Hagerstown, Md., school teacher, and now serving as an airplane saleswoman, has been granted her transport pilot's license. There is no higher rating for an airplane pilot. She is one of the twenty-three women in the country to be granted the transport pilot's license.

LEGION MOVIE WILL BE ATTRACTION AT BIJOU THURSDAY

With every indication that one of the largest crowds in the history of a similar event would be presented, everything was in readiness for the first showing of "A Lady to Love" presented under auspices of the American Legion Thursday and Friday. "Old Glory" American Legion film depicting the history of the flag with a beautiful story carrying the theme and a news reel, rounds out the program to be presented.

While many tickets have been sold in advance giving admission to the holders to either of the matinees or night performances, it is stressed by Paul Turnbull, chairman of the committee in charge, that the regular box office at the Bijou would be open for the accommodation of those wishing to attend who have not purchased tickets. Many theater parties have been planned among ex-service men and their friends for the event.

Members of the auxiliary have pledged their full support to the Legion show and it is expected that every member will attend one of the performances Thursday or Friday.

CONFERENCE HELD AT M. E. CHURCH

The fourth quarterly conference was held at First M. E. Church Tuesday evening with Dr. Jesse W. Swank, Dayton, district superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Church, presiding.

All lines of work in the church were given in reports. Short talks commendatory to the work of the Rev. W. N. Shank, pastor of the First M. E. Church were given by several members.

Members voted for the return of Dr. Swank as superintendent and the Rev. Mr. Shank for his fifth year as pastor of First M. E. Church.

HUGE MAJORITY FOR

SENATE BURIES ALL

OTHER CANDIDATES

Hoover had to act as when Fort's supporters industriously spread the report that the congressman had entered the race as the White House candidate. It went plausibly enough, in view of the administration's support of prohibition, and Fort's close relations with the president. Mr. Hoover however, denied it.

To counteract this propaganda, Senator David Baird, Jr., whose resignation paved the way for Morrow's candidacy, declared that he was able to state that "President Hoover is intensely interested in seeing New Jersey send Dwight Morrow to the senate."

This also drew a White House statement—the reiteration that President Hoover was keeping hands off not only the Jersey, but all state primaries. This last disavowal came only forty-eight hours before the balloting.

Because of an unusual situation created by Senator Baird's resignation, Ambassador Morrow will oppose two democratic nominees for election in November. There is a vacancy existing in the regular term extending from November until March. For this short term the Democrats yesterday nominated Miss Thelma Parkinson, a social worker. She was unopposed for it, as Simpson was for the long term. Morrow stood for both terms.

The weakness of the dry vote in the rural sections of the state was a disappointment and a surprise to the dry leaders. Always the industrial centers in Newark, Jersey City, Paterson, Bayonne and Camden have been conceded to be wet strongholds. But rural Jersey, mostly in the south, has been consistently dry.

Incoming returns today, however, indicated that Morrow had carried all the twenty-one counties in the state, rural as well as urban. He was leading Fort and Frelinghuysen everywhere.

Fort even lost his own district to Morrow by a 2 to 1 vote.

Long skilled in interpreting results, both Fort and Frelinghuysen early conceded Morrow's nomination. Both sent telegrams of congratulations and pledges of support not long after midnight.

Fort's only comment before retiring was:

"Well, I guess that Digest poll was about right after all."

He referred to the prohibition poll conducted by the Literary Digest which showed New Jersey to be overwhelmingly wet. Certainly Jersey voted that way.

With a sudden movement she attempted to reach the outer door; but she had been so indiscreet as to first turn her eyes furtively toward it. He anticipated her move and, with an uncertain step, he lunged toward the door and braced himself against it just as she reached it, so that she was thrown against him. Again, he would have grasped her, but she eluded him and grasped with horrified astonishment as he turned insolently, locked the door and thrust the key into his pocket.

"Don't be a fool!" he advised hoarsely. "I have no wish to harm you, Chickadee, but we've played the game your way long enough. Now it's my turn. You shall not leave this apartment except on my terms. Come, you don't hate me so much—why pretend? Haven't we been good pals and partners for several months? Let's make it permanent from now on."

He held out his hand and advanced toward her. With one desperate glance about the room, she fled from him. He followed. Around divans and tables, up and down the spacious room they ran, until Clara Dee felt like one in a hideous nightmare from which she struggled to awaken herself. To her frenzied mind, Ivan became a clutched, leering monster, breathing fire and waving horrible claws. If only she might escape him until

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO DESERVED TO WIN

READ THIS FIRST:

Clara Dee Forester is the pampered, motherless daughter of a millionaire, who is so disgusted with the wealthy young that he leaves his daughter one dollar at his death, hoping that some quality in her will make her a successful woman. She goes to Mrs. Flynn's boarding house to live, and there meets Winfield Baxter, a young chemist. Also Estelle Kay, who persuades her to model for the famous artist, Ivan Moreau. Both men fall in love with her. Estelle becomes jealous of Ivan and leaves the city with a mysterious threat. Clara Dee is invited to the studio for dinner New Year's Eve, but Estelle comes first to see Ivan, begs him to marry her, and is sent away angry.

Clara Dee arrives and tries to evade his attentions, while Estelle goes to Winfield and tells him where Clara Dee is.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII

Two hours later, men were moving boxes and crates from the brownstone lodging house into a truck, packed at the curb, and a great, manly boy with a stabbing pain in his heart that reflected in his brown eyes, directed their work. "Just when I was waiting to tell her, first of my success," his brain kept repeating over and over. When the last article had been stowed away, Winfield, with his head bared, held Mrs. Flynn's thick work-worn hand.

"Shore and it's sad I be, me lad, to be losin' ye. Er it's fer want of money ye're leavin', I'd be more willin' to trust ye fer awhile."

"No, it's not that, but I appreciate your kind generosity, nevertheless. A matter of importance forces me to leave unexpectedly."

Her eyes twinkled shrewdly. "And mebbe it's that there dickyery, and ye're goin' off to sell it? Shall I be tellin' Miss Clara where ye're goin'?"

"No, I don't think she would be in the least interested." He slipped a bill into her hand and leaped down the flight of stone steps, while she gazed after him open-mouthed.

From the seat of the truck, he waved his cap once more and was gone, down into the semi-darkness of the street. Mrs. Flynn went in and closed the door carefully after her, shaking her head slowly. "Strange doin's," she muttered.

Another hour passed. The figure of a girl entered the same door, stealthily and slipped quietly up the front stairs to the second floor, front room. She listened for a moment, then took a sheet of paper from her bag and pushed it under the door. Then she crept back noiselessly down the stairs, opened the door, and went out into the street. There, she breathed a sigh of relief.

"Thank God, I had enough sense left to do that," Estelle whispered.

On the slip of paper, which, unhappily, Winfield never saw, she had written, "Mr. Baxter—forget what I said about Clara Dee—she's got more sense than most girls, and she'll take care of herself. But if you want her, for God's sake, take her and do the right thing by her. What are you stallin' around for?"

With a terrific effort, Clara Dee pushed Ivan from her with both hands, stood up, with the chair between them. His tie was awry, his hair straggled over one eye. His feverish bright eyes devoured her. Never had she seen Ivan perturbed, either in his appearance or his composure—and her fear melted.

With a sudden movement she attempted to reach the outer door; but she had been so indiscreet as to first turn her eyes furtively toward it. He anticipated her move and, with an uncertain step, he lunged toward the door and braced himself against it just as she reached it, so that she was thrown against him. Again, he would have grasped her, but she eluded him and grasped with horrified astonishment as he turned insolently, locked the door and thrust the key into his pocket.

"Don't be a fool!" he advised hoarsely. "I have no wish to harm you, Chickadee, but we've played the game your way long enough. Now it's my turn. You shall not leave this apartment except on my terms. Come, you don't hate me so much—why pretend? Haven't we been good pals and partners for several months? Let's make it permanent from now on."

He held out his hand and advanced toward her. With one desperate glance about the room, she fled from him. He followed. Around divans and tables, up and down the spacious room they ran, until Clara Dee felt like one in a hideous nightmare from which she struggled to awaken herself. To her frenzied mind, Ivan became a clutched, leering monster, breathing fire and waving horrible claws. If only she might escape him until the dream passed—Surely, only in dreams did such grotesque things as this happen. She had suspected that Ivan could be ruthless when he chose, but she had never supposed that he could be a beast. No doubt, it was the wine.

Once, on the trail chance that he had not really locked the door, she tried to open it as she passed. He only laughed at her effort with a wicked sneer. A chair crashed over and she tried to turn about quickly to avoid the obstruction in her path—but too late, her dress caught on one of the upturned legs and she fell, exhausted, crumpled, sobbing out her breath.

Tried to get up again quickly—but Ivan's grasping hand reached out and clutched her arm which she wrenched from him; but he caught the shoulder of her gown. With her other hand, she beat him off, refused to stand on her feet. Fighting, clawing, dragging her, he pulled her into the bedroom.

Then a splitting, tearing sound, and she felt the sheer fabric give way, leaving part of it in his hand. She had gained the studio room again, ran frantically to the window—locked too—another door—locked. Ivan coming from the bedroom now—staggering heavily, blind with rage.

A flash of reason—Returned to her, and with it, an idea. The tea-cabinet—If only she might reach it—the left hand drawer—hoping it was still there, as when he had shown it to her many weeks ago. "A keen little cat," he had said.

The Theater

The spectacle of one of America's finest actresses portraying another should put plenty of punch into a film, and this is on the schedule when Ruth Chatterton goes East to do "The Royal Family" for Paramount.

This play is a thinly disguised take-off on certain members of the Barrymore clan, veteran and distinguished stage family. Ruth will play "Juliet" and Frederic March, who was with her in "Sarah and Julia; Walter Long (Gus, the colored soldier) also a talkie actor; Ralph Lewis (the Elder Stoneman, father of Elsie) who is working for Paramount and Elmer Clifton (Young Stoneman) a director.

Three famous members of the cast, Wallace Reid (the blacksmith), George Seigmann, (Lynch, the mob leader) and Robert Harron have died. Last year Marion Davies sponsored a revival of silent pictures in Hollywood as a charity benefit and crowds packed the theater to see "The Birth of a Nation." They still cheered the ride of the clansmen, which was the most stirring chase scene of its day, and some people drove all the way down from Sacramento to see the picture. The only revived film that drew an equal crowd was Rudolph Valentino's "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."

Friday, June 17, was the hottest day of summer, the mercury registering 102 degrees, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

It has been unofficially announced that the R. S. Kingsbury building will be awarded first prize in the contest for best decorations on public buildings during the G. A. R. Encampment. Second prize will be divided between the Hutchinson and Gibney buildings and the Elks' building.

Willie Baxley, 8, Detroit St., was surprised Friday evening when a group of his young friends arrived and spent the evening with him.

VALIDITY OF WILL DISPUTED IN SUIT;
OTHER COURT NEWS

Suit contesting the validity of the alleged last will of Lester Croy, who died April 14, 1929, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Sarah J. Ferrell, as guardian of Mary Jane Croy and Martha Elizabeth Croy minors, against Carrie Croy, as an individual and as administratrix of the estate of the decedent. The Home Building and Savings Co. is named co-defendant.

According to the petition, Lester Croy was the grandfather of the plaintiff's wards, his only heirs, and the defendant is his widow.

By the terms of a document purporting to be the decedent's last will, which was duly probated, the widow was named sole legatee, the plaintiff sets forth. It is claimed in the petition that this document was not the valid last will.

The plaintiff asserts that the personal estate of the decedent consisted of several thousand dollars on deposit with the Home Building and Savings Co. and that the widow, as administratrix of the estate, has filed her final account and has turned this money over to herself as sole legatee under the will after payment of debts and the cost of administration, the remainder of the money still being on deposit.

The plaintiff sought and obtained a temporary restraining order enjoining the widow from withdrawing the money on deposit.

Sarah J. Ferrell, as guardian of Mary Jane Croy, a granddaughter, is also plaintiff in a second suit seeking partition of real estate situated in Alpha, belonging to the decedent. The suit sets forth that the two granddaughters are each entitled to one-half interests in the property subject to the dower of the widow.

Marshall and Marshall are the plaintiff's attorneys in both actions.

WINS JUDGMENT

Jerry M. Dennis has recovered a judgment for $558 in a suit against J. C. Smith and Ethel J. Smith in Common Pleas Court.

GIVEN DIVORCE

Evelyn Jane Casues has been awarded a divorce from Sherman Casues in Common Pleas Court on grounds of gross neglect of duty and has been ordered restored to her maiden name of Johnson.

TEMPORARY INJUNCTION

An amendment filed to the injunction suit instituted by the Spring Valley National Bank against Miss Helen Dodds, as county treasurer in Common Pleas Court sets forth that the taxing authorities of the state are now attempting to collect the tax enjoined in the petition by assessing the amount against individual stockholders of the bank and ordering the treasurer to collect the tax or to assess a 16 per cent penalty if it is uncollected. The court granted a temporary restraining order enjoining the treasurer from collecting any tax on the stock of the bank or assessing a penalty until the court has had an opportunity to hear the case on its merits.

DISMISS CASES

Case of Fred Fox against the city of Xenia has been ordered dismissed in Common Pleas Court for want of prosecution.

The suit of Paul G. Gray against George H. Snyder and others has also been dismissed by the court.

VALUE ESTATE

Estate of Robert H. Kingsbury, late of Xenia, has a gross value of $15,657, composed entirely of personal property, according to an estimate filed in Probate Court. Debts amount to $4,200 and the cost of administration is $883, leaving a net value of $10,574.

CONFIRM SALE

In the case of Ralph M. Neeld, as administrator of the estate of James M. Woodside, deceased, against William H. Thornburg and others in Probate Court, private sale of property to Roy Borger and Clara Borger has been confirmed by the court.

HEARING SET

Application filed in Probate Court seeking to admit to probate the last will of G. W. Kaiser, late of Xenia, has been fixed for a hearing at 2 p. m. June 23.

DARROW TO DEBATE ON RELIGION WITH THREE IN DAYTON

Clarence Darrow, internationally famous criminal lawyer, will be one of four speakers at Memorial Hall, Dayton, Monday evening, June 30, at a religious forum. Rabbi Louis Witt of the Dayton Hebrew Congregation; Dr. Hugh I. Evans of Westminster Presbyterian Church, and Quin O'Brien, Chicago attorney, also are scheduled to speak.

Mr. Darrow, ranked as the nation's greatest criminal lawyer, also is one of America's foremost free thinkers, and will state in a thirty-minute address why he is an agnostic. Dr. Evans will represent Protestantism; Rabbi Witt, Judaism, and Mr. O'Brien, Catholicism.

On the day of the forum the participants will draw for positions on the program.

Darrow's name recalls his participation in the Loeb-Leopold hearing, the Scopes evolution case in Dayton, Tenn., the McNamara brothers trial in Los Angeles, and of special local interest, the Dr. Sweet case in Detroit, involving a graduate of Wilberforce University who was successfully defended by Darrow.

Patricia O'Brien, 114 N. Main St., Dayton, is receiving mail orders for forum tickets.

After the First
Twenty-five Thousand Miles

THE VALUE of sound design, good materials and careful craftsmanship is especially apparent in the new Ford after the first twenty-five thousand miles. Long, continuous service emphasizes its mechanical reliability and economy of operation and up-keep.

As you drive the Ford through many months and years you will develop an increasing pride in its appearance and a growing respect for the substantial worth that has been built into it. From every standpoint—in everything that goes to make a good automobile—you will know that you have made a far-seeing, satisfactory purchase.

Wherever you go, you hear enthusiastic praise of the car and this significant, oft-repeated phrase—"I'm glad I bought a Ford."

A FORD owner in New York tells of a 13,000-mile trip across the United States and back in sixty days and says "the car was extremely economical to operate, comfortable and speedy." A grateful father tells how the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield saved his wife and children from serious injury in an automobile collision.

To test tires, a large company drove a new Ford day and night, for an average of 500 miles every twenty-four hours. It was still giving satisfactory service after 105,000 miles.

A Ford car that had fallen into Fernan Lake was submerged for twelve days before being raised. After a new battery and carburetor bowl were installed, it was driven back to Spokane under its own power.

Many police departments have written of the special advantages of the Ford in crowded traffic because of its alert speed, acceleration and ease of control. An increasing number of fleet owners are also purchasing the Ford because their cost figures have given conclusive proof of its economy of operation and up-keep.

In addition to important triumphs in Germany, France and Italy, the Ford won six out of seven leading places in a contest in Finland, first and second in the Rafaela races in Argentina, first and second in the run from Copenhagen-to-Paris-to-Copenhagen, three gold medals in England, first ranking in the durability test over the tortuous Amancaes road in Peru, and first place in the 1930 reliability run conducted by the Royal Automobile Club of Sweden.

This contest was an exceptionally severe test of endurance and sturdy construction because it was held in the dead of winter and covered 600 miles of steady running over snow-covered country roads and mountainous hills.
